CROWDS CHEER DAVIS AT EL CERRITO RALLY

Four Nations Join Search For Lost Aviators

SOS MESSAGE SOLE CLUE TO SEA AVIATORS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(U.P.)—After searching thoroughly the vicinity in which the Rockford monoplane was last heard from, the U. S. coast guard cutter Macon reported tonight that she had been unable to find the slightest trace of the missing aviators.

The Macon planned to search the coast of southern Barfin land and east Resolution Island Wednesday in the hope the men might have made land and be stranded on some isolated spot along the shore.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—(U.P.)—Acting upon the slender hope aroused by an SOS call signed by the letter "R" Sunday night, four governments are assisting in the search for the missing plane "Greater Rockford," with Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer aboard.

The search has extended over most of the north Atlantic with assistance coming from agencies of the United States, Canada, Denmark and Newfoundland.

Only meager hope is held out.

Hot off the Griddle

FRANCE'S LIVING MARSHALS and principal generals of the World War have some pleasures to anticipate. Money has been appropriated to reconstruct the tomb of Napoleon. There is room for thirty more tombs, and they will be prepared to receive the generals when they die. As war generals do not have much to do now, they will go over to the Invalides and see how the work is progressing. Special places of honor will be reserved for Foch, Franchet, d'Esperey and the one-armed Gouraud. Napoleon, with his grim sense of humor, would have laughed at this. Before he died in his rat-infested hut in St. Helena, he was reconciled to be buried under the weeping willows of the lonely island. Europe waited until he was gone and dead before his tomb went up, and felt much safer after he was under tons of marble, and he was bappler, too.

ROY CHAPMAN ANDREWS, on an expedition in Mongolia, reports that he has uncovered the skeleton of a prehistoric monster unknown to science and regarded as a discovery of the greatest importance. This monster is said to be the great-grandfather of the largest previous known animal. The head bones weigh 400 pounds and are shaped like a saddle. The nose bone is narrow in the middle and widened at the end. (Continued on Page Eight)

Republican Nominee, In Speech Before Home Town Folks Tells His Plans

By PAUL MAILLON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WEST BRANCH, Iowa, Aug. 21.—(U.P.)—Speaking in a tent to the farmers and villagers of his corn belt birthplace, Herbert Hoover announced tonight he would call a conference of agricultural leaders to assist in drafting legislation to carry out his farm relief program if he is elected president.

Outstanding farmers, such as Frank Lowden of Illinois, defeated candidate for the Republican nomination, will be invited to join the conference, Hoover said in his prepared speech delivered here in surroundings shadowed with reminiscences of the old swimming hole, the quaker meeting house, a moving picture theatre and the time when he marched in the torch light parade at Garfield's selection.

Breaking the restraint of his acceptance speech, the nominee frankly talked to his townfolk about his program for modernizing American waterways to provide cheap transportation and for establishing a federal farm board to develop an efficient marketing system. He did not mention the third point in his plan, tariff revision to give the farmer equality with business.

But for the first time in his campaign, the nominee took a slap at the Equalization Fee System embodied in the McNary-Haugen bill he expressed gratification that changes in the fundamental structure of this government were not necessary to give ample relief and he pointed out his plan did not intend to put the government into business nor to subsidize prices of farm products and pay the losses thereon either by the Federal treasury or by a tax or fee on the farmer.

Analyzing his proposal to develop the Mississippi valley water system and promote an eastern outlet from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic, Hoover estimated the entire project could be concluded in four years, exactly the duration of a White House term. If the St. Lawrence project must be abandoned because of international objections, alternative routes must be considered, he said.

"The necessarily large advance in railway rates from the war militate against the economic setting of this whole interior section," he said. "This, together with the completion of the Panama Canal and the fact that ocean rates have increased but little since before the war, further disturbs the whole economic relationship of the mid-west."

"It is as if a row of toll gates had been placed around this whole section of the country."

Friends Support Davis

LOUIS DAVIS, candidate for state senator, last night received acclaim of his neighbors at a gigantic rally in El Cerrito where pledges of support were forthcoming on every hand.

VICTORY PREDICTED AS BIG OVATION IS GIVEN CANDIDATE FOR SENATE

The political rally held at Schwake hall at El Cerrito last evening for Louis E. Davis, candidate for state senator, was one of enthusiasm from beginning to end, and from the tenor of the talks made by different people, and especially the good news brought from Marin county, and the upper end of this county, there seems to be but little doubt as to the result of the election to be held next Tuesday.

Marin Safe For Davis
A delegation from Marin county assured the audience that that county would turn in a large majority for Davis, that the people of that section had decided that a change was necessary, and that new blood was necessary.

Paul Sanders acted as chairman of the evening, and in his most pleasant manner, kept things moving from start to finish.

Davis Given Ovation
Louis E. Davis, when he was introduced, was greeted with prolonged applause and in a very entertaining and convincing manner, told the audience why he was seeking the office of state senator. He had an ambition to place himself in a position where he could be of service to the people and accomplish something for his fellow man. He did not think any man should attempt to usurp a public office but that things should be handled in such a manner that there would be a stimulus for young men to seek to better their condition. It was his idea that the legislature should be more than a place for politicians and political spotters.

Davis Gives Pledge
Davis pledged himself to give his best to the people of the senatorial district, to treat all alike and to encourage industry in every way possible.

In closing Davis said, "If you send me to the senate and I believe you will, I promise that you will never have cause for regret for your action."

More News From Marin
William Bailey of Corte Madera was introduced, made a short talk and said that Davis would receive two-thirds of the vote of that section.

Captain Holloway of Sausalito, and a long resident of Marin county, told the audience that he had been a keen observer of political affairs for years and that he was satisfied that Davis was going to be the next state senator. (Cheers). The speaker said that Davis had made a wonderful impression on the people of Marin.

Woman Labor Leader Talks
Viola Cox, secretary of the Central Labor Council was the next speaker. Known as a tireless worker, the whole soul of Miss Cox is in the candidacy of Davis. She said that the laboring men and women were with Davis, because they had the feeling he would be fair with them and their cause. "There is not a bit of doubt in my mind," said Miss Cox, "but that Davis will carry Richmond and Contra Costa county."

Another thing is the fact that he is a veteran of the world war, and from my work I believe that every veteran is for him." Miss Cox was given hearty applause.

Sausalito Editor Sangraves
Frank B. Anderson, editor of the Sausalito News told the gathering that he had become captivated with the personality of Davis, and after a talk with him several weeks ago had pledged him his support, and was doing everything possible for him in Marin county. Anderson said that when a senator had missed 3109 roll calls during his term (Continued on Page 5)

THE SHAFT STRUCK HOME
The publicity given to the wetness of Mr. Smith of New York has aroused the candidate to explanations and replies. This is very strange, considering that he and his campaign manager, Mr. Raskob, and nearly all who want to see Smith president have been proceeding exactly like people who hope to capitalize discontent with the prohibition situation. How can Smith explain anything about his record if he vetoes the prohibition plank in the democratic national platform and places himself at all times in a receptive attitude toward the votes of wets?

Mr. Smith should worry about the straddle. Too many people don't want a confirmed wet in the presidency to vote the democratic national ticket, and they can't be convinced between now and November that the governor of New York is a supporter of the dry movement. Out of his own mouth he has convicted himself.

Yet he takes offense at the criticism of a prominent New York preacher and promises to reply blastingly to the charges of William Allen White of Kansas who has certainly a good foundation for his allegations about the votes the candidate cast on social measures while in the New York legislature.

The conduct of a presidential candidate who has spent his entire lifetime holding political office, is astonishing. He should know that there is great political weakness in a candidacy that turns to explanations and excuses. Smith is on the defensive and by that very act he confesses that the danger to his ambition from the prohibition sentiment of America is too much to overlook.

A Washington newspaper, conducting a straw vote campaign, was compelled to stop it for a week and check up because there had been ballot box stuffing. The fellow who would stuff the ballot box in a straw vote must be related to the one who cheats at solitaire.

YELLOW seems to be a favorite color for summer and fall. This evening and dinner gown is of buttercup yellow crepe satin and is very simply made with a surplus closing. A wide band decorates the waistline, being very wide over one hip, coming to a point at the other from which falls a long panel of the material which gives the waeeen hemline effect.

BEAUTY
By LAURA LANE
Dear Miss Lane,
At the beauty parlor where I go, the girl who attends to me says that one should never use soap and water on one's face but should rely solely on cleansing creams. I never feel really clean unless I use soap and water as I have done for years, and I wonder whether she could be right, or if I should subject my skin to this treatment.

It is not true that an one should ever use soap and water on cleansing the face. People will get the most beneficial results from liberal use of just that combination. Possibly your beauty specialist thought your skin too dry and sensitive to subject it to this treatment.

In the case of such skin, cleansing cream is a help. It means to be preferred to soap and water tend to irritate the fine texture and dry the skin so that wrinkles will appear earlier than usual.

If you use a good cold cream and one which you are sure is suited to your type of skin, you need not feel that your face is not "really clean." Creams often wear thoroughly through the skin when used and can be so effective in the end, and a little of the dirt and oil on the face. Unless the soap is rubbed into the skin very carefully and vigorously, you will find that, after such a treatment, you are able to remove remaining dirt with your cleansing cream. Try wash face, rinsing and drying your face someday, and then using your cold cream and you will not longer have the feeling that cream doesn't adequately clean your skin.

After you have wiped off the cold cream, wash your face in warm, and then cold, water before applying your astringent to get the best results.

TOKIO STANDS FIRM AGAINST PACT CHANGES

PEKING, Aug. 21.—(U.P.)—The Japanese government has taken the lead in declaring clearly and firmly to the Chinese Nationalist government its attitude on the revision of treaties.

Japan, according to an official statement by the Japanese Legation in Peking, takes the stand that the Japanese "unequal" treaty with China continues until October 1936, unless Japan herself is willing to negotiate a new treaty. At the same time, the Legation indicated that Japan will not object to treaty revision if the Nationalists assume a reasonable attitude.

Considerable excitement was aroused in the Legations in Peking by the Nanking government's announcement that treaties which had already expired were considered abrogated, and that steps would be taken at once to revise those not yet expired. It had been commonly supposed that the Japanese treaty was listed among those already expired. But the Japanese Legation has wasted no time in stating that the Japanese government does not take this view.

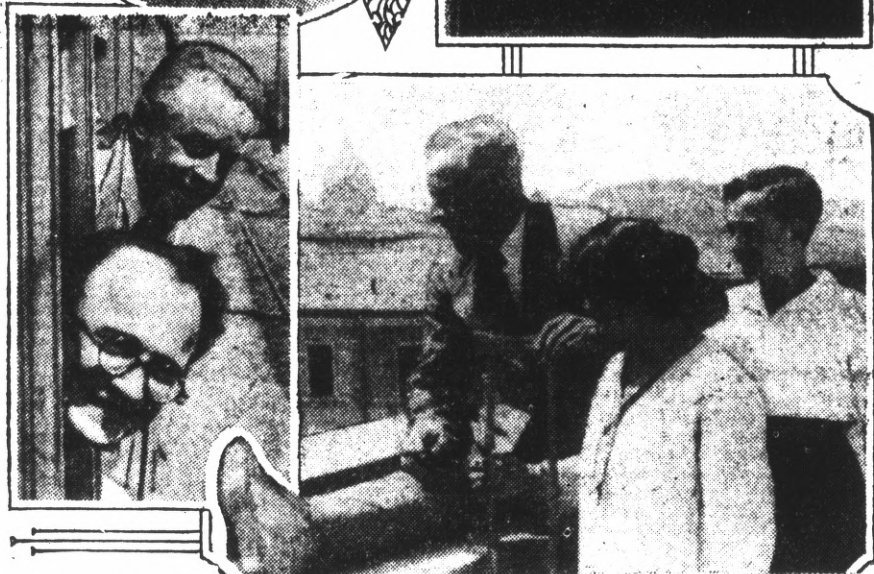

The Japanese viewpoint, as outlined by the Legation here, is that the Japanese treaty with China automatically was renewed until October, 1936, when the former Peking government did not effect revision within the six-month period stipulated by the treaty.

The Japanese treaty, it was observed, differs from all others in that it possesses a clause, No. 26, which reads as follows: "If no demand for revision be made on either side within six months after the end of the first 10 years, then the treaty and tariffs, in their present form, shall remain in force for ten years more."

The clause "and no revision be demanded" is not included in the treaties other Powers have with China. The Japanese Legation takes the view that this clause may be interpreted to mean that the Japanese treaty was automatically renewed on April 21, 1927, six months after the 10-year period expired.

ACTOR PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO BATTERY COUNT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20.—(U.P.)—Tom Mix, bashful and taciturn, appeared in court today, pleaded not guilty to charges of battery brought by Will Morrissey, song and dance man, and his wife, "Midge" Miller, and demanded a jury trial.

The trial was set for September first.

The shoes Mix wore into court would never have been worth a whoop in the stirrups, for planting in the mud to balk a rampant calf, or for planting in the face of a foe.

Mix had discarded his high heeled boots, which Morrissey charged had been used freely in their Sunday morning fight. Mix said he hadn't worn them to the formal dinner party anyway.

The motion picture cowboy wore a blue suit, dark soft hat, a polka dot tie and rubber heeled oxfords to court.

He was a different Mix than that known to the screen and he differed also from the wild cowboy described by Morrissey after the battle, in which Midge Miller received a black eye.

The cowboy, represented by two attorneys, had little to say in court. He continued to place responsibility for the battle on Morrissey.

Morrissey will go to trial Thursday on charges of being intoxicated when he went to report the battle to police and Midge Miller will be tried Wednesday.

Mix was released on his own recognizance.

COMMISSION HEARS PLEA FOR BRIDGE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—Approval of the war department within several weeks for the construction of a bridge across the strait between Marin and Sausalito, following a hearing before the Army Board of Engineers, was announced today by Major E. H. Ropes, U. S. engineer, at which the project was given the go-ahead with no opposition.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 21.—The hearing on the Southern Pacific application for permission to build a $10,000,000 bridge at Marin was adjourned at 2:45 p. m., without any formal objection having been entered to the project. The testimony will be forwarded to the War Department at Washington.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—Presenting the formal application of the Southern Pacific Railroad to Major E. H. Ropes, U. S. engineer, at the opening this afternoon of the hearing on the railroad's petition for permission to build a $10,000,000 bridge at Marin, E. J. Foulds, railroad attorney, announced that his had been informed today that the Interstate Commerce Commission had approved a petition for issuance of a certificate of public necessity and convenience for the span.

The petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission is one of the important steps in the legal procedure that must precede bridge construction.

In presenting the formal application to Major Ropes, an representative of the War Department Foulds summarized the railroad's bridge plan and asserted that the span would permit of the saving of 20 minutes time on passenger trains and as much as three hours on freight train time over that now necessary in use of the Benicia-Port Costa ferry system.

Foulds said that the bridge would permit an increase in gross tonnage from 11,700,000 to 14,950,000 and said that the span would accommodate 16 through passenger trains, 16 local trains and 14 freight trains daily.

Visiting in the south in San Diego are Mrs. Genevieve Richards and her daughter, Dolores. Mrs. Richards is employed in Woolworth's store here.

of office, it was conclusive evidence that he was not on the job. Marin county favors a change, and the speaker assured the audience that Davis would leave Marin county with a large majority.

Veterans for Davis
Dr. J. L. Beard, world war veteran of Martinez, made a talk in which he said that the fake veterans' organization organized for Sharkey at the county seat a short time ago, did not represent the veterans of that section, as the membership was made up principally of men recruited from the courthouse and from Sharkey's office. Dr. Beard asserted that the veterans' vote of that section would go almost solid for Davis. The vet-medico also said that the people of Martinez were against Sharkey and there was every indication the county seat would return a majority in favor of Davis.

Dr. Breneman Testifies
Dr. J. T. Breneman, veteran physician of El Cerrito added a word of commendation for Davis. He had known the candidate since he was a young lad, and he was satisfied the people of his hometown would roll up a big vote for him.

Will Make Change
Fred M. King, old time resident of Sausalito said that without a doubt, judging from the sentiment in Marin county, that Davis would be the next state senator from this district.

To Give Majority
Merle Akers of Pine Station, Marin county, said Marin county would go for Davis by a large majority.

Pierce Stirs Heavens
Wilbur S. Pierce, attorney of Oakland, and former city attorney of El Cerrito, made a stirring talk in which he said he had known Davis for years and had a warm affection for him, and wanted to see him successful in his ambition. "This is an opportunity for the people of El Cerrito," said Pierce, "to put this town on the map. This candidate served in the world war, and at the time the boys were leaving for the front there was nothing too good for them, now let us repay them by honoring them."

That "Clean Record"
"What reason the present state senator has to oppose Davis, I do not know. An office is not a pension, it is a position of trust, and the record of the present senator is not one to be proud of. It is one to be ashamed of, and no decent, law abiding citizen should cast his vote for him. I am satisfied after the votes are counted next Tuesday that Louis E. Davis will be your next state senator."

Proud of Davis
Fred Bergerow, one of the active citizens of El Cerrito said the people of that city were for Davis. They were proud that El Cerrito was the home of such a worthy young man, and who had such laudable ambitions. Bergerow is a veteran of the Spanish war, and said the veterans of the wars were for Davis almost to a man. As the veterans believe in aiding and honoring those who had fought for their country.

CREDIT GIVEN VETERANS ON BROWNS CLUB

By HARRY FERGUSON

Much of the success that Dan Howley has had with the St. Louis Browns this season may be credited to Alvin Crowder and Sammy Gray, two young men who were supposed to be midway down the lane that leads to baseball oblivion.

Their story is old as the game itself. Both tasted of greatness. Crowder is a former idol of the Washington fans and Gray was a mainstay of the Athletics before Connie Mack decided to trade them with Jack Dunn of the Baltimore Orioles and get into the thick of the pennant fight. Came the inevitable slump that hits all ball players, dimming batting eyes and taking the strength and wizardry out of pitching arms. Patiently Connie Mack nursed Gray along by day and by night prayed that the pitcher's arm would regain its old cunning. Mack never lost faith in Sammy and even up until the time he traded him to the Browns, the aged leader of the Athletics felt the pitcher would come back again.

Gray did. The sultry air of St. Louis crept into the joints of his pitching arm and when he was ready for a great season. Now he is standing the opposition on its head and takes particular delight in mowing down the Athletics when they meet.

Crowder's story is the same except that Bucky Harris did not allow Alvin as long a period of rest as Gray enjoyed. Last year Crowder was going good for a while and then he fell back into the ruck and failed to bolster the remnants of that speedy Washington team that Harris led to two pennants and that crumbled over night.

No one knows what Howley did to Crowder and Gray. Dan probably doesn't know himself, but he does know that one day the two pitchers stepped out and began hurling baseball that would warm the heart of any manager. Part of the credit goes to Howley, but most of it goes to Crowder and Gray who suddenly began to believe in themselves.

Howley, who graduated out of the International League where he worked wonders with his material, is an expert psychologist. He proved it this spring when the Browns were still seeking a southern sunshine to drive the knicks out of their muscles. Listed among the men who went to the Browns were two silent, sad-faced youngsters who played the best ball they knew how and kept wondering to which minor league team they would be farmed out when Howley began swinging the axe among the recruits. They had come up from Tulsa, a trifle shy of baseball experience and totally lacking in confidence.

One was Kress, a shortstop of ability, and the other was Brantley, a second baseman who fielded cleanly and who had cultivated the pleasant habit of standing a hit when hits were most needed.

Howley's brow was crinkled in a puzzled line as he weighed his material. The infield was his problem. One day Howley took a long chance. Calling Kress and Brantley into the corner, he said:

"Look here, you kids are great ball players. I know you don't think so, but I do. Both of you are on my team for good and I depend on you to plug up the holes in the infield. Now get out there and prove that you are big leaguers."

Notre Dame Is Prepared For Grid Season

By HARRY FERGUSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

Of all those who teach, young men how to fight, and, if necessary, die for dear old alma mater, none is better known than Knute Rockne.

Legends have grown up around the stocky leader of the football forces at Notre Dame. He is the miracle man of the gridiron, the George Stallings of intercollegiate football.

They still tell the story in South Bend, of how a backfield candidate reported for practice one day with his hair neatly trimmed and his face clean shaven. Rockne took one look at him.

"Well, you big sissy," said the coach. "What's the idea of shaving before you report for practice?"

The next day the Notre Dame football squad threw away their razors.

Rockne never took the trouble to deny or confirm the story, but the incident is typical of him. He makes his men live, eat and sleep football. That is part of the Rockne system and is necessary because he does not have a large student body from which to pick his men. Almost everybody tries to play football at Notre Dame.

There are inter-class teams, inter-fraternity teams, inter-departmental teams and teams that are just teams. Rockne sees as many of these games as possible and out of the material selects a large squad. Then he gets down to work.

His policy is to pay a high premium on brains and speed.

Go back a few years and see if you can remember a Notre Dame eleven that wasn't fast and clever. Rockne crowds the rules, takes every advantage of them and turns out the smartest teams in the country. He made the forward pass a formidable football weapon in the days when other football coaches were sticking to line bucks and end runs.

On top of his knowledge of the game, Rockne is an expert tactician. No man in the world of sport can fill a team so brim full of dash and determination to win, with the possible exception of John McGraw, whose lectures to the New York Giants are listed among the classics.

Time after time Rockne has taken the Notre Dame squad into the dressing room between halves, thrust out his square jaw and made a speech that turned eleven sane young men into so many intelligent, scrapping animals. His caustic tongue has talked Notre Dame into many a victory. And he can plead with tears in his eyes, slap backs, spin a jest, or do anything else that he thinks should be done.

Three years ago he instituted the practice of sending in shock troops at the start of the game. The Notre Dame squad would start the game, wear down the opposition and then in would come eleven fresh men to carry the Green to victory. He saves his men, nurses frail, fast backfield stars along and then hurles them into the breach for five minutes of whirlwind ball carrying.

Perhaps the greatest of his great teams was developed the year he had the Four Horsemen. Stuhldreher, Miller, Layden and Crowley were magic names and made up what many experts still insist is the best backfield of all time. Notre Dame travelled the length of the country that year without losing a game.

Rockne enters the 1928 season with several veterans back from last year. There isn't any use telling you to watch Notre Dame. You have been doing it for years if you follow football.

Rose's possibilities are regarded as exceptionally bright by President James Nealon of the State league, who also had a good word to say for Jones, Ridge Grathouse and Mel Pikes.

It is understood that the Sannies will find a berth in the state loop next season.

ROBIN SCOUT TRADER HORN OF BASEBALL

Larry Sutton, baseball scout for the Brooklyn Robins, has been called the Trader Horn of baseball. A few days ago he celebrated his 70th birthday watching the Robins win a close game from the Cincinnati Reds.

"Scouting for ball players is just like many other things in the game. Sometimes you succeed far better than you had dared hope, and at other times you have no luck even though you have gone to a great deal more trouble." That is the veteran scout's views of the business of discovering promising young apprentices for the baseball industry.

There is no one in the game better informed on the subject than Larry. He started scouting for the Brooklyn Robins in 1909 and after 19 years of successful inspecting the ivory yards from coast to coast is still with the same firm.

In the days before he was a scout, Sutton followed the printing trade. He has always been an ardent baseball follower, and in his off days could be found at the baseball park. Back in 1908 he saw a young pitcher of promise and recommended him to the Brooklyn club. The rookie's name was Don Seaton and he immediately made good. This met the hearty approval of the late Squire Ebbetts, and he decided that a printer as wide awake as Sutton could be used to good advantage. The printer baseball fan was placed on the pay roll immediately.

The Brooklyn club was rewarded at once. Scout Sutton journeyed down into the Carolina Association that summer. He came back with Zack Wheat whom he considered for many years one of the game's best hitters. He was one of the leading hitters in the National League in 1925, with an average of .375.

Sutton helped the National League by recommending two capable umpires. One day in Aurora, Ill., a young arbiter took Larry's fancy. Shortly afterwards the National League hired him on the scout's endorsement. He was Ernie Quigley. Incidentally, the same day Larry saw Quigley he viewed Casey Stengel for the first time. He bought Casey for $300.

Daddy Vance was a star that was signed through Sutton's persistence. Vance had had two unsuccessful big league trials and was with New Orleans. Sutton was ordered to New Orleans to look over a pitcher named Phillips, who was on the market for $12,500. "Thumbs down on Phillips, but buy Vance," he reported. Squire Ebbetts demurred, but Larry insisted. Finally he received permission to buy Vance for $1,000 down with $4,000 more if he made good.

STARS GATHER AROUND LEADER OF ATHLETICS

By HARRY FERGUSON

Stars continue to revolve around the graying head of Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics.

With the exception of John McGraw, who leads the New York Giants, no manager in the major league has had so many outstanding ball players on his payroll as Mack.

He started back in the days when winning pitchers was his habit. Then he had Eddie Collins, who for years was king of the second basemen, and who is now back with the Athletics in the capacity of pinch hitter and coach. Mack also had that slugging third baseman who became a national figure—Home Run Baker.

Then came the time when Mack suffered four straight defeats in the World Series at the hands of the Boston Braves. That caused the Philadelphia manager to break up his winning team and begin a campaign of building from the ground up with youngsters.

For the seven years between 1914 and 1921 Mack kept on building without success. Seven straight seasons went by with Philadelphia finishing in last place every time. But Mack's careful work finally began to tell and the Athletics finished third and last year they came in second.

It was in 1925 that Mack partially abandoned his program of developing youngsters and took his checkbook into the market where baseball talent is sold. He came with Lefty Grove, for whom he paid $50,000; Mickey Cochrane, the brilliant catcher who cost $10,000, and Paul Strand, $75,000 outfielder who turned out to be the worst buy of the lot.

Once more Mack had a formidable team. He kept on buying trading and drafting until today he has a club that threatens to dislodge the powerful New York Yankees from the leadership of the American League.

Zack Wheat, who for years had been a fixture in the outfield of the Brooklyn Dodgers, put on a Philadelphia uniform last year, but his aging legs could not carry him through the pennant drive. Tri Speaker was signed up this year, but he, too, bowed to Father Time. Only the mighty Ty Cobb came through in expected style in 1927, and now he has been supplanted in the outfield by Haas, a great hitter and a polished outfielder.

Al Simmons is Mack's brightest star this year. Simmons cost the Athletics plenty of money, but he has been worth every cent of it since Mack taught him a few things about hitting and turned a raw, awkward youngster into one of the most feared batsmen in the major leagues.

The check book is still working at Shibe Park. This year it brought Ossie Ovrill out of the obscurity of the American Association and made him one of the most promising recruits of the season. It also obtained George Barnshaw, Baltimore pitcher, who started out slowly, but who now is proving that Mack knows what he is buying.

Lesser lights who have sparkled in Philadelphia are: Sammy Hale, Jimmy Fox, Max Bishop, Bing Miller, Howard Ehmke, Jack Quinn, Rube Walberg, Sam Gray, Joe Boley, Bill Lamar, Baby Doll Jacobson, Lefty Heimech Slim Harris, Ralph Perkins, Joe Hauser and Jimmy Driscoll.

The coast guard cutter Marion now on the search in the Davis straits between Labrador and Greenland, the vicinity from which the last word of the Greenland sound plane was heard, reports a plane could not remain long in the stormy weather in that region.

A message to the state department from Ottawa, Canada, reported the department of marine and fisheries of the Canadian government had instructed all vessels in the vicinity of Belle Isle to keep a sharp lookout for the plane. All shipping which follows the St. Lawrence route on the north trans-Atlantic route passes by Belle Isle.

Three vessels of the Hudson Bay company have joined in the search according to advice from Avra M. Warren, American consul at St. John's, N. F., to the state department.

The federal radio commission, seeking to give Hassell and Cramer every chance to be heard, should they still be alive and sending out radio signals, asked the American Telephone and Telegraph company to suspend until further notice its transoceanic telephone station at Ocean township, N. J., which operates on 32.71 meters. This is close to the wave length used by the Greater Rockford.

The General Electric company likewise was asked to suspend its station at Oakland, California. The Tropical Radio was requested to reduce its sending from its Honduras station in order to eliminate interference.

The navy directed all of its operators afloat and ashore not to send within ten percent of the wave band on either side of the Greater Rockford's allocation.

Less than twelve per cent of the motor vehicle registration in the United States is in cities of 500,000 population or over, according to the California State Automobile Association.

One Killed In Explosion On Oil Steamer

POINT WELLS, Wash., Aug. 21. (U.P.)—One man was drowned when an explosion aboard the Standard Oil tanker Petroleum II threatened complete destruction of the Standard Oil company plant here today.

A. A. Richards, ship cook, was drowned when he leaped into the water with five other men following the blast. The five men escaped by swimming under water to the shore.

Part of the tanker's superstructure was torn away by the blast and thousands of gallons of flaming oil were thrown over the water. The sea was a mass of flames in a few moments and rapidly spread into the wooden docks. Serious damage to the docks was prevented by the Richmond Heights fire department which extinguished the fire after a stubborn battle.

Twenty million gallons of gasoline, stored in nearby tanks, were endangered by the blast. Loss of 54,000 gallons of gasoline and damage to the vessel was estimated at more than $20,000.

HOT OFF THE GRIDDLE

It took millions of years for that nose bone to change. Science will study this and announce that this animal lived before Adam and Eve. It will pay no attention to the real, LIVING monster, CHINA, sleeping for thousands of years, and who will wake up some day and turn our civilization upside down if we do not treat him as part of the world's family.

BANKERS FROWN ON A $12,000,000 loan to Nicaragua which the State Department has tentatively approved. Wall Street has been criticized too much for its interference in Nicaragua and will sit back until the country is pacified. Marines, creeping through the jungles for months looking for General Sandino, are as much at a loss today as they were a year ago. Nicaragua will float few loans until he has been caught. He calls himself a patriot and we call him a bandit. He knows that all patriots are bandits while they are losing. Until he wins or loses definitely, Wall Street will not be interested in loaning $12,000,000 to Nicaragua.

ONCE IT WAS THE FARMER boy's special privilege to run away and join the circus. Now the girls are doing it. A Chicago society debutante changes her name and signs up with Ringling Brothers. She stands it for ten days, makes good at the horse jumping events, but is fired when she fails to control trick horses. She can now go back to the country club and tell the girls and boys all about it over the cigarettes at cocktail time. The circus would draw a greater crowd if more society people got into it.

CHINA POLICE TRIUMPH OVER KIDNAP GANG

SHANGHAI, Aug. 20. (U.P.)—Within the last four months the police of the International Settlement have raided more than 50 dens of kidnapers and have arrested more than 300 men and women, all of whom have been charged with kidnaping. Of that number, 17 have been convicted, sentenced to death and executed, while scores more have been sentenced to terms in prison ranging from five years to life.

There are three crimes in Shanghai for which the death sentence is passed. They are murder, armed robbery and kidnaping. During the month of June armed robbers made a new record in the Settlement. Kidnapers also established a new record.

The kidnaping of wealthy Chinese men and sons of wealthy Chinese merchants has assumed such an alarming proportion that all bridges in the settlement are now guarded by armed police and members of the Shanghai volunteer corps. All suspicious looking Chinese are searched and all motor cars carrying Chinese are closely scrutinized and sometimes stopped and searched.

The drive against kidnapers began four months ago with the arrest of a single Chinese on a kidnaping charge. From the arrested man police obtained information of utmost value in checking the activities of kidnaping gangs.

The police learned that back of the kidnaping gangs was a "master mind" who levied tribute upon all gangs operating within the settlement.

No practical idea of the extent of kidnaping in Shanghai was realized until the police set to work on the incriminating information obtained when the first of the gang was arrested.

Police officers realized that the backwash of the ever changing political situation which saw tens of thousands of soldiers around Shanghai, has caused an alarming increase in crime. The organization behind it was powerful but elusive.

W. G. Clarke, Director of Criminal Intelligence, and his staff of foreign and Chinese detectives, declared war on the kidnapers, who were terrorizing Shanghai and action was started in earnest.

Guests too, like automatic hot water service

One never knows when hot water is wanted in their home. And one never knows who wants it.

On the average, there is a demand for hot water 70 times a day in the usual family of four. And this demand starts in the early morning and continues until late at night.

How inconvenient it is to meet that demand with the ordinary water heater!

But a modern Automatic Gas Water Heater keeps hot water always ready for instant use. You merely turn the hot water faucet for a cupful or gallons of steaming water.

Why don't you, too, enjoy the comfort and convenience of a modern Automatic Gas Water Heater? It is the cheapest way to heat water in the home.
